The numbers behind enterprise fintech's best quarter in over two years

Enterprise fintech may have turned the corner. The sector delivered its strongest fundraising quarter since Q1 2023, with $6.1 billion raised and a 19% YoY increase. One key trend: Deal volume fell 13% to 351 transactions, but median deal sizes moved 29% higher to $6.5 million, largely thanks to AI companies commanding premiums. Meanwhile, IPO momentum is building, with Circle's massive $6.4 billion debut leading the charge, alongside consumer fintech IPOs from eToro and Chime.

PitchBook data reveals that the CFO stack is emerging as a winner from AI innovation, capturing $1.8 billion across 90 deals, as investors bet big on the opportunities to ate manual finance and back-office tasks. Venture-growth deals also proved that the fintech infrastructure remains a priority, as seen with Plaid's $575 million raise, Brex's $460 million Series G, and Airwallex's $300 million Series F.
