Methodology

The Crunchbase Billion-Dollar Exits Board includes exits by U.S. venture-backed companies valued at $1 billion or more, starting in 2020.

Companies are included on this list based on their IPO value or M&A deal price. After exiting, a company's value could fall below $1 billion or a company could be delisted. We still keep the company on this list based on the date and its value upon going public. Should a planned merger be canceled, the deal will be removed from this list.

We only include a company's first exit. For example, Qualtrics was acquired in 2018 by SAP for $8 billion. Its subsequent IPO in January 2021 is not included on this list as the company had already exited.

All funding values are given in U.S. dollars unless otherwise noted. Crunchbase converts foreign currencies to U.S. dollars at the prevailing spot rate from the date funding rounds, acquisitions, IPOs and other financial events are reported. Even if those events were added to Crunchbase long after the event was announced, foreign currency transactions are converted at the historic spot price.

If we are missing any companies, please reach out to gene@crunchbase.com.

Frequently Asked Questions

— What is an exit strategy for startups?

An exit occurs when a private company is either acquired or goes public. Types of exit strategies include IPOs, SPAC deals, direct listings, buyouts, or mergers or acquisitions.

In the event of an exit, the amount invested by angel investors, venture capital investors and private equity firms becomes liquid. If successful, those investors recoup not only their initial investment, but also a significant return depending on the stage in which they invested and the amount of equity they owned.
