For Startup Funding, Every State Brings In A Pittance Compared To California

A handful of coastal metros, led by the San Francisco Bay Area, have long swallowed up the lion's share of venture funding, and while the latest data shows that's not changing, the remaining states haven't bowed out by any measure.

Frequently Asked Questions

— What is cybersecurity?

Cybersecurity refers to the practice of protecting computers, networks and data from unauthorized access, damage or theft. It involves keeping private and sensitive information — everything from passwords to consumers' personal information, to private company financial details and intellectual property — safe from hackers, bots, viruses and other threats.

Overall, cybersecurity practices aim to create a secure digital environment by proactively identifying and addressing vulnerabilities, monitoring for potential threats, and responding swiftly to mitigate risks.
