Fintech VC firm Ribbit Capital is raising a new $300M opportunistic fund

By Kia Kokalitcheva & Michael Bodley

Published July 1, 2025

Ribbit Capital, a Silicon Valley venture firm focused on fintech startups, is seeking $300 million for a new fund, according to an SEC filing.

“Leapfrog Capital,” as the fund is dubbed, is said to be an opportunistic fund aimed at a wide range of deals, including growth investments, secondaries, publicly traded companies, and take-private transactions, according to a person briefed on the strategy. Its prior opportunity funds had focused on a narrower scope of investments.

An SEC document filed in March showed that the firm was raising $500 million for its latest flagship venture fund, “Ribbit Capital Y.”

Founded in 2012 by Meyer “Micky” Malka, Ribbit Capital made its name investing in early-stage fintech startups. It’s backed the likes of Coinbase, Brex, Credit Karma and Robinhood over the years.

In 2020, Ribbit also dipped its toes into the special purpose acquisition company boom, forming and taking one vehicle public. The SPAC was ultimately liquidated in 2022 after failing to merge with a target.

The firm did not respond to multiple requests for comment.
