About PitchBook's Institutional Research Group

PitchBook's Institutional Research Group is a provider of investment strategy, fund performance and industry research. The group leverages PitchBook's proprietary data, such as valuations, deal multiples, and fund returns, to deliver analysis that allows clients to quickly gauge trends, price transactions, assess risks and identify notable company sets in the private capital markets.

The team's coverage spans private equity, venture capital, real assets, leveraged loans, high-yield bonds and private credit asset classes. PitchBook also provides full-time analyst coverage of emerging technology industries, delivering comprehensive assessments of disruptive sectors to help clients better segment and size markets, understand company and investor landscapes, evaluate opportunities and develop conviction around the growth trajectories of emerging industries.

Meet the analysts

The research team comprises industry experts including former business operators, investors, buy-side/sell-side equity research analysts, and consultants. PitchBook analysts continuously monitor industry developments, stay up to date on news and trade publications, attend industry conferences, and communicate with investors and management teams to provide timely, differentiated, and actionable insights.

PitchBook analysts are available for comment and are frequently featured in top-tier media outlets such as The Wall Street Journal, Bloomberg, CNBC, and the Financial Times, among others.
